Human volunteers still needed for robot competition

Mikaela Lefaive
Communications Specialist

Close to 100 volunteers are needed to support Georgian's third annual FIRST Robotics competition March 15 to 17. Technical knowledge is not required for most positions.

Not sure what it means to volunteer? Read about Catharine Losier's experience.

You can also watch a video outlining this year's game, to understand how the competition works and what kinds of robots these high school students are building.

What's in it for you?

- Get free food
- Receive a free volunteer T-shirt
- Pick from nearly 50 roles, from judge to crowd control
- See cool robots in action
- Support the next generation of tech geeks

What you can expect

- Respect for your time

What we're looking for

- Enthusiasm!
- Punctuality
- Availability over a full-day
- Availability for training if you're taking on a key role

For more information contact mark.gatenby@georgiancollege.ca. Or you can start by completing the registration form.
